

Abstract Of The Invention

A communication system has a plurality of high altitude devices that are coupled to user terminals through a plurality of dynamic links. The terminal monitors and changes the multiple dynamic links as the position of the user terminal relative to the high altitude devices changes. The gateway terminal transmits and receives to said user terminals through the high altitude devices using a plurality of datagrams.